Dear Mr. Robert,

I have learned that you are a great grandson of Christopher Robert, the founder and patron of Robert College. I am preparing to write a history of the College which should be completed and published by 1963, the centennial year of the College.

I wonder if you have any family papers or other documents relating to the part which Mr. Robert played in the starting of the College. If you have any such they would assist me materially in writing about the early years of this institution.

I should particularly like to get information about Mr. Robert's visit to Constantinople in 1856, towards the end of the Crimean War. We know that he came here as a tourist in that year, and that he met Dr. Cyrus Hamlin, the first president and Mr. Robert's coadjutor in the founding of the College, but our information about this visit is scanty and imprecise.

I understand that you have an uncle, Arthur Remington Robert, who lives in England, and that he has documents and letters pertaining to the founding of the College. Can you give me his address and do you know anything about the material in his possession?

I shall be most grateful for any help you can furnish me.

Sincerely yours,

Harold L. Scott
Vice-President of Robert College
